

Appendix A

Introduction to Appendices

A.1 Overview

The following appendices, labeled A through Z, present supplementary or more detailed technical information for the reader who wishes to gain insights into the analyses presented in the 2009 Regional Water Supply Outlook. The appendices contain information on the equations used for demand forecasting, specific source data collected from the water utilities, detailed weather and demographic data, and other information related to the development of this document.

To a large degree, the order of the appendices follows the sequence of project completion and report chapter organization, starting with utility survey forms and demand forecast data followed by the water supply assessment information.
